

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS MINOR

Description

The International Relations Minor offers courses focusing on the institutions, structure, and policies of other countries, and how globalization, international law, economic and military power, international organizations, and various international actors affect what happens in countries as well as the relationships among them. As a consequence, students interested in careers in international business, international finance, international development, law, education, and environmental policy will find the minor especially applicable to their training.

15 Semester Hours – Five Courses

Required Course

POLS 1200 Introduction to International Relations

POLS 3450 Introduction to Comparative Politics

Electives (select any four)

POLS 2790 Special Topics*

POLS 3280 Power and Wealth in World Politics

POLS 3970 Special Topics*

POLS 4220 American Foreign Policy

POLS 4870 Psychology of Terrorism

POLS 4970 Special Topics*

*Special Topics courses will apply only when the substantive focus aligns with one or more of the minor's learning outcomes and approved by the academic adviser. Recent special topics courses have included: Democracy and Democratization; and Politics of Developing Countries.